COLORADO VISITED BY DISASTROUS FLOODS & STORMS

PROPERTY DAMAGE IS ESTIMATED AT $4,000,000—HUNDREDS DRIVEN FROM HOMES

IRRIGATION DAM THREATENS TO BREAK AND DESTROY THE TOWN OF MARSHALL

(United Press)
Dead Now Number Six
Denver, Colo., June 4—Six persons are known to have lost their lives in the flood which has swept sections of Colorado in the last twenty-four hours, according to reports received here at noon today.

Several persons were reported missing but all communication by rail and wire to the stricken district was down.

Swollen streams were receding this afternoon and no further damage was feared unless heavy rains set in. Rumors circulated that scores were dead at Pueblo lacked confirmation and doubted by state officials attempting to get in touch with the situation here.

Denver, Colo., June 4—Cloud bursts and torrential rains forced mountain streams over their banks flooding several cities and causing great property and crop damage, according to meagre reports reaching here today.

Pueblo is under water in the most disastrous flood in history, according to reports.

Damage is estimated at $4,000,000 and hundreds left their homes to seek safety. Grave fears were held out early today for the safety of residents of Marshall, Colo. When telephone lines from the city failed at an early hour it was reported that an irrigation dam threatened to break and inundate the town. The dam impounds an immense lake of water covering eight hundred acres and over twenty-three feet deep. The several hundred residents of the town were fleeing fearing the town would be wiped out.

In the northern section of the state it was reported that three or four inches of rain had fallen at midnight and torrents still pouring down. Later reports seeping through from Pueblo said that fear had added to the peril of the flood.

The lumber ard of the Newton Investment company was reported in flames lighting the flood area for miles. Fort Collins and Greeley were reported flooded.

Four Lives Lost
Grave fears were held out for tourists unaware of the approaching flood who may be trapped by camping in little mountain valleys which are now swollen lakes.

A wall of water swung Mrs. Carl Dover and her baby to death near Sterling following a cloudburst. Two children of Wm. Gray were sucked from the arms of their father when he was vainly trying to rescue them from the torrent which inundated Pueblo. Some of Pueblo's streets were under six feet of water. National guardsmen are patrolling the streets in boats. Fire broke out in many places of the city, but were checked by rain.

The stricken areas are cut off from the outside world. Fifteen miles of the Lincoln highway has been swept away. Railroad tracks were washed away in many places. Hundreds of acres of crops were under water and a large number of livestock drowned.

Rain began falling at 5 P. M. Friday and this morning was unabated. Indications were that it would continue to fall today. Rescue parties which left Bloomfield last night to search for a group of seven motorists believed to have perished when a bridge over a little creek went out, reported no trace of them had been found. An interurban car was marooned two miles from town. The conductor waded through two feet of water into Bloomfield to get food for the passengers.

Body of Moorhead Man Taken From River

(By United Press)
St. Paul, June 4—The body of a man found late yesterday in the Mississippi here was identified as that of Elmer Smith of Moorhead. E. C. Adams and A. Charlesworth identified the body. Adams said he met Smith Wednesday night for the first time in three years and that he then was trying to obtain credit for a week's lodging. He is believed to have committed suicide in a fit of despondency. He is said to be survived by a wife in Moorhead and his mother, Mrs. John Docks of Binford, N. D.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 4—Lester Newhall, 21, who is alleged to have confessed last night that he killed his sweetheart, Miss Josephine Howard, 18, was expected to be charged with murder today.

Police Trying to Locate Kidnapers of Five Year Old Boy

New York, June 4—All points of egress from New York were carefully guarded today in hopes of trapping the kidnaper of Giuseppe Garatta, 5, for whom police have been searching since the boy disappeared May 24.

BY THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT, OWING TO INCREASED SINN FEIN VIOLENCE

(By United Press)
London, June 4—Resumption of Sinn Fein violence in southern Ireland may lead the British government to recognize a "state of rebellion" in that district, according to authoritative information here today. Some officials said that the government would not declare a "state of war" because "recognition of a state of rebellion permits more drastic handling of the situation."

The first step for such action, it was indicated, would be extension of the martial law zone and transportation of enormous military reinforcements to southern Ireland.

Statistics for the week ending June 2 were said to be 438 members of the crown forces killed and 825 wounded. It was also announced that at least 35 Sinn Feiners had perished in the burning of the Dublin customs house.

Reports reaching here today said Col. Winter, vice commander of the royal Irish constabulary, had been wounded while motoring in Dublin. A second ambush near Roshoria was reported in which four policemen were killed and five seriously wounded. The British admiralty has indefinitely closed the dock yards at Quinlan following an explosion which damaged a destroyer. A Sinn Fein bomb was believed to have caused the explosion.

Pretty School Teacher Murdered

(By United Press)
Des Moines, Iowa, June 4—Miss Sarah Barbara Thorsvale, pretty country school teacher, was found murdered near Valley Junction today. She had been missing for two days. Indications were that the girl had been assaulted. Her head was crushed and her hands tied behind her back.

As a Modern Filipino Actually Looks

There are hundreds of thousands of this type of young men in the Philippines. They are to be the future rulers of the destinies of the islands.

The Filipino has been much misrepresented in the United States. This is largely because the Sunday supplements have made a specialty of portraying the semi-naked non-Christian hill tribes as "typical" Filipinos, which is far from the truth.

The total population of the Philippines is 10,350,040, of which 9,495,272 are Christians and civilized, and have been so for 300 years, possessing a culture and refinement that will compare favorably with that of other countries. The number of non-Christians is 855,

MAY ARBITRATE WAGE DIFFERENCE

CONTRACTORS AND BUILDING TRADES OFFICIALS GET TOGETHER TO ARBITRATE

(United Press)
Chicago, June 4—Hopes of reducing the ranks of unemployment of Chicago were seen today when contractors and building trades union officials got together to arbitrate their difficulties.

Building crafts were locked out when they refused to accept a wage reduction. This threw ten thousand out of work and tied up $100,000,000 worth of building contracts.

It is estimated that there are now 75,000 men idle in Chicago. About 80,000 more are only working part time.

Suffering is alleviated by Dr. Ben L. Reitman, city tenant inspector, and a number of society agencies.

Railroads Want Cash From the Government

(By United Press)
Washington, June 4—Immediate appropriation by congress of $700,000,000 to pay the railroads what the government is said to owe them for additional claims, is being urged on President Harding and congressional leaders as the next step in settling the troublesome railroad problem.

SUMMER BEGINS IN CAPITAL CITY

MEMBERS OF CONGRESS ENTER ON SEASON OF HARD WORK IN HOT WEATHER.

NEW ONES SUFFERING MOST

Lawmakers Realize All Americans Are Anxiously Awaiting Taxation Legislation—Tariff May Be Put in Operation Piecemeal.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.
Washington.—Congress is rounding into the midsummer stretch of its work. It seems a bit curious to speak of the midsummer season as about to open, but early summer in Washington is like midsummer anywhere else, and so one takes the liberty of departing from the literally seasonable truth.

The senators and representatives do not work shirt-sleeved, although there is not a man in either house who does not wish that he might violate the conventions to the extent of dropping his coat into the waste paper basket, in these hot days of District of Columbia weather. The new members of congress suffer more under the heat than the old members. The veterans are seasoned in more ways than one. They have no illusions about the possibility of getting away early in a tariff bill year, and neither have they illusions concerning the possibility of getting through the summer on an ordinary spring wardrobe. They prepare in advance to dress for the occasion, and in Washington the occasion frequently is red hot.

Some one has said that 110,000,000 Americans are waiting anxious-eyed and eager-eared to find out what the congress of the United States is going to do with the taxation problem. The number of people concerned in this is exactly the number given, but it is not to be taken for granted that babes in arms, boys of the "shining morning face" period of life, or girls of like age and like school occupation, or some millions of the adult indifferent, care anything about taxation legislation; but nevertheless every member of congress knows that his fellow citizens are more interested in this matter today than in anything else which is to come before the lawmakers.

New Idea in Tariff Legislation.
Interest in the tariff hides its head in the presence of interest in taxation.

Girl Graduates Prefer Teaching As a Life Career

(United Press)
Chicago, June 4—Blackboards and copy books stare middle west girl graduates in the face. They will plunge into the old-fashioned business of teaching school.

Careers of the business uplifting profession and marrying have been passed up for the school room.

This comes from Miss Ruth Esch, daughter of the author of the transportation act, and leader of the 1921 class at the University of Chicago.

"Eighty per cent of the girls of my class have already chosen schools for the next year," said Miss Esch.

Attorneys Withdraw From Stillman Suit
(By United Press)
New York, June 4—Two law firms have resigned as counsel for Mrs. James A. Stillman in her husband's divorce action and her side of the case is in complete charge of John P. Brennan of Yonkers, it was reported here today.

After a 36-hour conference it was learned the firms of Stanchfield & Levy, and Cadwalder, Wickersham & Taft decided to withdraw. The exterior motive was said to have been that Brennan was best fitted to handle the case because of being located in Westchester county where the case will be tried. It was believed however, the hidden motive might have been the attitude of some attorneys opposed to Mrs. Stillman's refusal to accept a settlement of the suit.

Some of the Democrats say that tariff and taxation amount to the same thing, but of course there is the instant Republican denial of this today just as there has been instant Republican denial of it ever since the party was formed.

Part of the Republican majority in the house today is seeking means to put into effect at once the tariff provisions of the new bill as they pass congress. In other words, it is the desire to set the tariff law working piecemeal if a way can be found to do it. This will be something new. The idea is that it takes a long while to pass a complete tariff measure, and that if approval can be secured for certain provisions of it before the whole measure becomes a law, it will be a good thing to put these provisions into immediate operation. However, this may or may not be done, and when one says this absolutely unilluminating thing he has said all he can say on the subject.

Congress is interested in the Grover Cleveland Bergdoll case today as deeply as ever it was. This case has taken a sharp turn recently. Col. Thomas W. Miller, the alien property custodian, who saw high service in France and was given two or three decorations for gallantry, has charge today, in a sense, of the Bergdoll matter, for the colonel has issued a statement as follows:

G. C. Bergdoll's Property Seized.
"At the personal direction of the President of the United States, and in accordance with the opinion of the attorney general, I will seize such property belonging to Grover Cleveland Bergdoll as has been reported to the alien property custodian as being his own property, or in which he has any interest whatsoever, whether owned and administered personally by him or through power of attorney given to any member of his family."

The intention of the alien property custodian is to administer and operate property seized from Bergdoll as that of any other enemy's property held by him, until congress shall direct what disposition is to be made of this class of property now in the hands of the custodian.

It has been held consistently by the writer of this from the beginning that some means would be found to get Bergdoll's person and now it seems that one of the means of getting his person is that of getting his property. It is believed that this drag evader whom the commander of the American Legion declared to be "the one Boche that we want" soon will find himself penniless in Germany, and that he may prefer prison here to penury there.

Something New in Swindles.
The old form of travel swindle has appeared at many places in Europe, where foreigners find the trains stopped in wild places, the members of the crew quietly smoking and playing cards, claiming they are out of fuel, and no start is made until a substantial collection is taken and turned over to the crew.

COLLEGE ATHLETES BATTLE FOR HONORS AT CHICAGO TODAY

TEAMS FROM TEN BIGGEST UNIVERSITIES OF THE COUNTRY WILL COMPETE

(By United Press)
Chicago, June 4—Six hundred crack athletes representing the ten biggest universities of the country, instituted a battle for honors in the twenty-first annual track and field games of the western conference at Stagg field today.

Due to the large number of entry trials in dash events were run yesterday to weed out the dead wood.

In addition to the western conference schools, Missouri, Ames, Nebraska, Ohio West state normal, the Michigan Aggies, Notre Dame, Butler, Cincinnati and Grinnell sent their best track men.

Illinois, with a well balanced team, was picked to annex the classics. However, Michigan, Notre Dame and Wisconsin were considered strong contenders.

Peggy Not a Smuggler, Has No Jewels to Smuggle

(United Press)
Chicago, June 4—Peggy Joyce, show girl, hasn't a jewel to her name. That is what her attorney told customs officials here when an investigation into the charges that Peggy was a smuggler were started.

"How can Peggy be a smuggler when she did not bring any jewels into the country with her?" asked L. G. Caldwell, her attorney.

Caldwell did not commit himself as to how she disposed of her jewels but Chicago friends said it was to buy bread and butter with after Joyce left the flat on a Paris boulevard.

London Vicar's Daughter Is Killed in Dublin

(By United Press)
Dublin, June 4—Miss Kathleen Wright, daughter of a London vicar, was killed today by a revolver shot when two armed men fired at a group of officials near her. The assassins escaped on bicycles.

The shooting occurred while a large crowd was watching a cricket game between gentlemen and officials. The girl's fiancée was sitting beside her and another girl was wounded in the arm.

The Small Town.
All America is watching the small town, studying it, interpreting it, seeking through it to discover the depths and intimacies of national life, asserts a high school principal in Virginia. It seems that whereas the small boy still imagines the city as the place containing the "great big things" of the world, yet when he attains intelligent and experienced manhood he continues to return to the village for the "really" big things which denote the nation's true character. Several years ago, says the principal, even New York forgot Broadway to listen to the broken silences of Spoon river, and the dramas and novels engaging the attention of the most serious of the metropolitan critics of today are those dealing with the problems of the Main street village. The country community is no longer obscure.

CURB BILLBOARD NUISANCE

Rules Adopted by Kansas City for the Proper Regulation of Outdoor Advertising.

Kansas City authorities have drawn up rules for the regulation of "outdoor advertising." Other communities would do well to give the matter careful consideration. Many places have even gone to the length of forbidding the billboard altogether, as a nuisance. Whether such a move is advisable is a mooted question, but all will concede that regulation of some sort is necessary. The Kansas City rules are as follows:

"No waste or other rubbish resulting from any billboard or outdoor advertising sign shall be allowed to accumulate on or in the vicinity of the premises where the same is located.

"Bottoms of all signs shall be at least three feet from the ground.

"No outdoor advertising shall be permitted or allowed to be maintained without an annual license from the division of highways of the department of public works."

None of the foregoing rules shall apply to outdoor advertising which is not within public view of a highway, public park or reservation; nor to signs or other devices erected and maintained in conformity with existing law, advertising or indicating the person occupying the premises in question or the business transacted thereon, or advertising the property itself or any part thereof as for sale or to let; nor to advertising for public purposes by the commonwealth or any municipality thereof.

Any city or town, by ordinance or by law, may wholly exclude outdoor advertising from specified districts.

Any license may be revoked for a violation of any of these regulations or any provision contained in the license.

It is the opinion of the proponents that a sufficiently large license fee be required to cover the expense of proper superintendence of this business, so that it will not be necessary to license great numbers of these devices, in order to obtain sufficient revenue to cover the proper expense of adequate supervision.

The Rosicrucians.

The Rosicrucians were members of a mystic secret society which became known to the public early in the Seventeenth century, and was alleged to have been founded by a German noble called Christian Rosenkreuz in 1388. He was said to have died at the age of 106. The Rosicrucians pretended to be able to transmute metals, to prolong life and to know what was passing in distant places. Their secret was never revealed, if there was one to reveal. The society is said to have died out in the Eighteenth century.

ELKS PICNIC AT ROCKY POINT

Elks Lodge Sets the Date for the Annual Picnic of Organization on Sunday, June 19

AN IDEAL LOCATION IS CHOSEN
House and Social Committee Perfecting Arrangements, Brainerd Band May be Engaged

The Elks lodge, Brainerd No. 615, annual picnic will be held on Sunday, June 19, at Rocky Point resort, as announced by Chairman Clyde E. Parker of the house and social committee. Rocky Point resort is considered an ideal place and the lodge session endorsed the work done by the house and social committee.

The committee was authorized to enter into negotiations with the Brainerd Municipal band to see if the band can be secured for the picnic and later for parade day at the Elks state convention in St. Cloud next August.

A formal dinner at $1 a plate will be served in the afternoon and the house and social committee will send out cards so as to ascertain how many members and their families will take dinner at the resort. Mr. Anderson will also have provisions for serving continuous luncheons. There will be boats and launches for fishing, there will be bathing, dancing, etc.

A feature is to be a ball game between the Elks team and the Speed wells for a purse. The Elks are re-arranging their suits and having them dry-cleaned. The game will be no small affair, but will be for blood.

Canton Abolishes Gambling.

Petitioned by more than 50,000 members of the Anti-Gambling society, headed by religious leaders, asking for the abolition of gambling in Canton, China, the governor of Kwangtung province has prohibited gambling there. The official order was given following a great demonstration of over 15,000 citizens of Canton in a parade several miles long, lasting six hours, when the petition was presented. In this great Christian parade, one of the largest in China in many years, representatives from all the Christian colleges participated. Lee Mink Tak and Tse Ya Luk were the marshals of the parade, with volunteers from the Canton Christian college and secretaries of the Y. M. C. A. as their aides.

Go Slow in Rejuvenation.

There was a discussion of Dr. Eugen Steinach's "rejuvenation" operation, about which so much has been published, at a meeting of psychiatrists and neurologists in Vienna recently, and the consensus of opinion was that Steinach's discovery is a real step forward but that it is too early to introduce it into general practice, and its use must be confined for the present to clinics.

Look After the Trees Now.
Industrial communities are prone to undervalue the products of nature until it is too late. A fine tree is the product of from 20 to 50 years of growth. It cannot be hurried; nature will not hasten her steps at man's wish. No amount of money can speed the development of any tree beyond a certain pace, though money can provide good conditions for growth. To save a tree, therefore, is to save something which only a generation or more can replace.

Model English Towns.
The model industrial town idea, originated some years ago in the United States, is to be applied to a system of industrial garden cities which in time will rim the city of London. The project is an attempt to solve London's housing problem and at the same time prevent overwhelming congestion in the cities.

TEAM WORK

The Harding administration is now nearing the third month of its existence and the national capital is now able to form an intimate idea in regard to its workings. It seems to be agreed that President Harding is not as hard a worker as was his predecessor in office during the early days of the latter's administration. But President Harding's political friends answer that "he doesn't need to work so hard because he doesn't try to do it all himself." This is perhaps the correct analysis of the situation since the new officials are making fine progress in team work. Washington finds the Hardings "friendly people," and their personal popularity is growing fast.

AUTOMOBILE PRICES

In an automobile article in the Washington Herald on tires it is declared: "Raw material represents about forty-five per cent of the manufacturer's price. The labor cost cannot be over $6.00 per tire and at present is no doubt considerably less. Raw material costs are below what they were in 1914. The facts indicate that the price of tires has been maintained at a high level by an agreement among the big manufacturers. The present cut shows some signs of sharper competition in the tire industry than has prevailed for some time. It has been predicted that competitors may announce still greater reductions before many weeks."

Words Change Their Meaning.
There are many instances where words change their meaning completely in the course of time. The word mansion meant simply a tent pitched for soldiers on their march. Later on it was applied to a roadside house for the accommodation of strangers.

College Championship.
Northfield, June 4—State college track teams were fighting for the Minnesota championship here today. Carleton, St. Olaf, St. John's, Hamline, Macalaster, St. Thomas, Gustavus Adolphus and other small college teams were to be represented in track and field events.

The meet was expected to bring scores of out of town rooters here.

Discuss Plan to Market Products.
St. Paul, June 4—A plan to market Minnesota's vast dairy products will be discussed at a meeting of co-operative creamery representatives here Monday.

About 600 representatives of creamery and dairy concerns are expected to attend the conference.

Hugh J. Hughes, state director of marketing, has devised a tentative plan which will be considered at the conference. It provides for a co-operative sales agency to be established by local co-operative creameries and managers by a board of directors whose duty will be to inspect and brand shipped butter, standardize the quality of each dairy's products and establish a sales plan.

The purpose of the sales plan will be to combine all sales and make the buyers of Minnesota products compete on the open market instead of permitting them to force competition between co-operative creameries of the state.

BETTER THAN THE SIGNBOARD

Street Lights, Properly Treated Are Found to Be More Effective Than Usual Arrangements.

The ordinary street lights in a fashionable suburb of Detroit, Mich., are now being used as roadside danger signals in place of the signboards posted and usually ignored, heretofore. Conversion of a light at a dangerous curve or crossing into a warning signal is simply a matter of painting a red circle, 8 in. in diameter, on the proper side of the 10-in. globe. As the globes are carried by ornamental iron poles, 12 ft. high, the red disks can be seen clearly both in the daytime and when the current is on, and have proved more efficient than the signboard.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

AMUSEMENTS

"Suds"

Mary Pickford, who has delighted so many millions will be seen at the New Park today and tomorrow in her latest United Artists Corporation production, "Suds," in a role said to be entirely different from anything in which she has heretofore appeared.

The story was adapted from the stage play "Op o' Me Thumb" in Maude Adams appeared with such great success in Charles Frohman's Empire Theatre in New York City.

The cast was especially selected by Miss Pickford as being especially adapted to the roles in which they appear. The street scenes are laid in the slums of London in which locale the story takes place and are exact reproductions of certain quarters of the big metropolis which were photographed by the star's English representatives and reproduced at her studio in perfect detail.

At the New Park Theatre

The master screen craftsman, David Wark Griffith, producer of the screen's greatest sensations, creator of the most advanced innovations in motion picture productions, finder and developer of the world's greatest screen stars, has produced another wonderful production, "The Love Flower," which is being heralded everywhere as a creation of exquisite beauty, haunting charm and spirited drama. United Artists Corporation recently announced its release and the first showing of this newest Griffith production in this community will be at the New Park theatre next week.

Words of the most superlative degree and descriptions of the most laudatory nature have not been found to express in adequate terms this wonderful picture plays of love and adventure such as only a Griffith, a master may reveal in all its beauty, strength and excitement. Critics have pronounced it one of the most remarkable productions that has ever come from this master hand and fans everywhere have revelled in its beauty and excitement and heralded it as a production comparable only with the most wonderful that has come to the screen in the past years.

Miss Theda Gildemeister
In her address on "Society's Debt to the Schools" Miss Theda Gildemeister said in part:

"There are two sides to every question—and this is no exception. The school is indebted to society and a whole evening could profitably be spent in showing what that debt is and how the schools are paying and should continue to pay that debt."

"Tonight we have time to consider only one side of the question and my topic shows you what that is. What is this relationship that makes each side a debtor? Are school and society antagonistic? No. For the relationship is that of parent and child. Each is indebted to the other. Each tries to pay the debt and, in doing so, the two are more closely knit together."

"Discursively, I shall show how the school is the child of society, and how society should assume an ideal parent's attitude towards the school. "Man is fundamentally gregarious. As soon as two or more get together, they wish to exchange ideas, to cooperate, etc. To do this best, and particularly as the numbers convening increase, rules, regulations, conventions become necessary. Those laws, conventions, etc., which the adults find particularly valuable, they wish to have perpetuated—hence taught to the children.

"Parent's haven't time, or are not prepared to do this, hence schools are established and specially prepared persons selected to give all their time to this problem of teaching the young."

Parent's Duty

"What is the duty of an ideal parent towards an ideal child? Support in style fitting the parent's condition, usually a little better. Education including school, travel, counsel, opportunity, etc. Love, sympathy, affection, loyalty, protection, defense of, feeling pride in, etc. Interest in child's children. Inheritance left to the child including god name, ideals, money, social positions, etc."

Analogous duties of society to school were shown by the speaker. Each of the five points named were applied to society's attitude towards education of which the school is the main means. Education was defined as a leading out process. If teachers were confined to school work only, to what society has found good, children would be living their parents' lives against their own.

"Teachers should have vision, they should look ahead about fifteen years, (for the child of six), to fit him for his individual adulthood. The vision must come from the heart of society itself, hence the teacher must be among his fellows."

"What is necessary to help this on—comfortable living conditions for the teacher, tenure of office, etc. What are some of the newer movements judged by the present pulse of society? Good manners, better health, proper expenditure of leisure, more tendency to faith, reverence, etc., that is a definite tendency towards religious teachings, ethics, social as well as personal."

"Society must not foster the idea that school and the child are natural enemies. Help make a school appear what it is, the dessert, the frosting on the cake, the ice cream of life!"

"When the time spent in school is reduced to terms we use daily, we realize how little time the school claims the child and hence how necessary it is that the child miss no minute of it. Six hours, five days a week, four weeks a month, nine months a year, eight years will give us 8x9x4x5x6 hours. When these are multiplied and divided by 24 (the hours in a day) we shall have just 360 days. That is, through the eighth grade, a child who misses not a day, gets less than a year's schooling. Add four more for college and we lengthen the whole time to two years."

"Parents may talk with children about school work, not school pranks, until the child feels that what he does in school is worth while."

Society should take an interest in the school's children, in playgrounds, home visitors, cripple schools, Americanization work, etc.

"Society must leave to the school a legacy of work well done, hence measured and of high ideals which will carry the school beyond society itself."

"If then, society can nurture its child, the school; help it to grow, love it; love its children; and leave it a worthy inheritance, society will have paid its debt to the school."

George D. LaBar

George D. LaBar, president of Brainerd's board of education, offered the class the congratulations of the board and wished them unbounded success and happiness.

Supt. W. C. Cobb
Supt. W. C. Cobb spoke on the debt of the class to society. He spoke of the need of increased school facilities, and showed how a larger high school would enable Brainerd to give the first two years of a college education.

Program in Detail

The program opened with a song by the high school girls' glee club; invocation by Rev. Arthur C. Smith, pastor of the First Baptist church; song by the Girls' glee club; commencement address by Miss Gildemeister who was introduced by Supt. Cobb; selection by the high school orchestra; addresses by M. B. Scherich, Supt. W. C. Cobb and George D. LaBar; granting of the diplomas by Supt. Cobb and Mr. LaBar; class song, benediction by Rev. Smith.

A. J. HAYES HEADS GROUP OF BANKERS

Elected President of Sixth District Group at 18th Annual Convention at St. Cloud

LARGE ATTENDANCE PRESENT

Bankers View With Optimism Resumption of Normal Conditions in Business Life in Nation

At the two days' session of the Sixth District Group of the Minnesota Bankers Association, being the eighteenth annual meeting and held in St. Cloud, A. J. Hayes, cashier of the First National Bank of Brainerd, was promoted from vice presidency to the presidency of the group association.

Other officers elected were W. Leigh Carey of the Merchants National Bank of St. Cloud, vice president; L. E. Perkins, of the First National Bank of Verndale, secretary-treasurer; R. G. Neils of the Benton County State Bank of Sauk Rapids and Edward Zapp of the Zapp State Bank of St. Cloud were named members of the executive committee in addition to the above named officers, who are ex-officio members.

Mr. Hayes and R. J. Tinkelpaugh, cashier of the Citizens State Bank of Brainerd, motored to the convention in Mr. Hayes' car. The start was made in a driving rain storm from which they emerged near Royaltown. The return home was without incident.

Mr. Hayes and Mr. Tinkelpaugh were highly pleased with the success of the convention, over sixty bankers of the district being present. The general keynote expressed was optimism over the return of normal conditions in business.

One of the best addresses of the session was that of Rudolph Lee on taxation. The address of welcome was delivered by Senator R. B. Brower of St. Cloud, and the response by A. G. Wedge of Park Rapids. Greetings from the state association were voiced by Otto M. Nelson, president. Charles O. Kelson of the First National bank of Lake Park spoke on "The Stocking Banker". Senator L. E. Potter spoke on "What the Farm Bureau Expects of the Banker". "Game Laws De Luxe" were explained by Clark Eldred. B. M. Gile of the Security State bank of Bemidji spoke on "Pure Bred Stock and Bank Deposits"; Editor Rudolph Lee of the Long Prairie Leader on "The Modern Criminal Joy Ride of Taxation". A round table discussion was conducted by J. K. Martin, of the First National bank of Little Falls.

The Minnesota State Reformatory was visited and they were addressed by the superintendent, Charles E. Vasily.

The convention hosts included these banks of St. Cloud: America National, Farmers State, First National, Merchants National Security State, St. Cloud State, Zapp State.

BRAINERD GOING STRONG

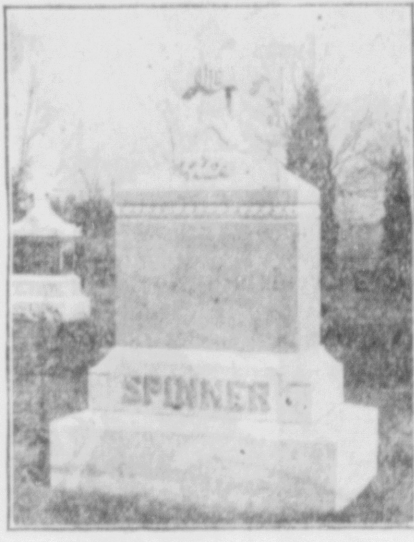

Brainerd Team to Play in St. Cloud on Sunday, June 5—Lineup is Announced

The Brainerd team is going to St. Cloud with a strong line-up for Sunday's game, according to the dope given out. The pitchers are Stallman and Gustafson, both men of noted mound work, who are expected to keep the heavy hitting St. Cloud batters in the background.

Belfy is Brainerd's first sacker. Roderick third, Molstad second, Ted Stallman short, Caron left fielder, Sheffield center fielder, Imgrund right fielder and Gaskill catcher.

The St. Cloud management has not yet succeeded in securing a plot of ground available for a ball field and situated on street car lines. It is likely that a decision will be made soon and that work on the new playing field will be commenced next week.

SPECIAL "FORBIDDEN FRUIT" EDITION

FAIRYLAND SHOWN IN "FORBIDDEN FRUIT" SCENE BY DE MILLE

When it was announced that Cecil B. DeMille would film one important episode—the Cinderella fairyland division—of "Forbidden Fruit," the Paramount picture, in a stage setting built completely of plate glass the scoffers arose en masse and pointed out that it couldn't be done.

"It's impossible"—so they said. But Cecil B. DeMille didn't think so. Neither did his production manager, Howard Higgin, nor his photographer, Alvin Wyckoff. Theodore Kosloff, to whom was entrusted the task of designing the unique costumes and drilling the dancers, likewise agreed that it was possible when all the world thought otherwise.

The first matter to be settled was the choice of a location for this set. After considerable deliberation it was decided that the Famous Players' studio tank would serve as a foundation, for the set. Inasmuch as a number of fountains, a waterfall beneath the wide glass stairway and two large shallow pools with black swans swimming about were included in the plans, this selection of the tank as the foundation came as a matter of course.

At this point, Production Manager Howard Higgin called into consultation the best show case construction men obtainable. Before these experts the plan was discussed in all of its multitudinous angles. At the conclusion of that interview, it was agreed that the work should start at once and that the task of assembling sufficient plate glass for the purpose should be pushed forward with the greatest possible speed.

Glass of five-eighths inch thickness was selected. The Pacific coast boasts of but a limited supply of this grade of plate glass and it was necessary to corner the market to obtain a sufficient quantity for the purpose.

Following the usual procedure of set construction, plans were drawn by the Lasky art studio department. But these plans were unlike any previously drawn in that department or for the matter of that in any office or any motion picture studio. For the material to be used in his set was glass rather than wood and plaster, as in the case of most other screen settings.

Two Pools and Fountains

Where the steps debouched onto the glass floor of the ballroom two wide, shallow pools were constructed. Rising from the surface of these pools were eight octagonal glass pillars each bearing at its apex a large basket of blown glass fruit over which water from the enclosed fountains played. Black swans made these pools their home during the actual filming.

Over all this gorgeous expanse of crystal beauty was swung a canopy which rivalled in expense the circumscriptions of the past and which served to complete the picture and emphasize the beauty of the reflections on the crystalline floor.

When the set was in readiness Theodore Kosloff marshaled his ballet of four-score players. Costume contrivances in opulent beauty any thing ever seen on the screen or of had been provided for every minor guest at the fairyland ball. The principals of the cast—Agnes Ayres, Forrest Stanley, Kathlyn Williams, Shannon Day, Julia Payne and Theodore Kosloff—appeared in the costumes specially designed by the famous Russian dancer, Theodore Kosloff.

It required two days and the greater portion of one night to film this episode of the story, but the result more than justified the time and labor expended, not to mention the tremendous monetary outlay which such a scene must necessarily entail. At the conclusion of the actual filming every member of the cast could truthfully claim complete fatigue. Even Cecil B. DeMille admitted that he had enough labor to last him for some little time.

All this activity registered in celluloid will flash across the silver screen in approximately three minutes. Weeks of work, endless planning and tremendous expense were expended to make this the most beautiful thing of its kind ever attempted on the screen.

But Who Wants Such a Big One?

Woolens produced in Massachusetts last year could make a blanket a mile wide and 37 miles long.

Agnes Ayres and Forrest Stanley in scene from Cecil B. DeMille's Production, "Forbidden Fruit." A Paramount Picture

Miss Ayres was recently selected by production "Forbidden Fruit," which Cecil B. DeMille to play the chief will be seen here next Monday and feminine role in the latter's special Tuesday.

Cecil B. DeMille WAVES THE MAGIC WAND; BEHOLD

Once, years ago—more or less—you were a child and you dreamt of childish things. In your imagination towering castles rose and touched the clouds; castles hung with diamonds and studded with gold. You waved the magic wand of fancy and saw palaces of crystal that glittered with precious stones, lovely princesses and ladies in waiting, gay cavaliers, fairy godmothers, fairies, evil and good, thronged the scene, and always you were the poor little Cinderella or the lad who fared forth to seek his fortune and invariably you found and wooed by the Prince Charming of transformed into a princess to be wooed by the Prince Charming of your dreams.

You have put away D'Aulnoy and Laboulaye, Anderson and Grimme; you have forgotten Andrew Lang and Howard Pyle; your dream castles are still there, but years and the cares of life have drawn a veil over your vision and you see them no more, save on some rare occasion when the mood and the environment combine to rend the veil momentarily and you catch fleeting visions of the things beyond.

The Yellow Dwarf and the White Cat, the King of the Black Isles and loquacious Scherezade, the Princess, who lived on a glass hill and the old

Clarence Burton, Agnes Ayres and Theodore Roberts in Cecil B. DeMille's Production, "Forbidden Fruit." A Paramount Picture

Cecil B. DeMille's superb Paramount picture, "Forbidden Fruit," which will be shown at the Lyceum Monday and Tuesday, decidedly marks an era in motion-picture production in this country. It is a stupendous photoplay and of such excellence as to entitle its being termed a masterpiece of which any producer might well be proud. The story is embellished by a vision of Cinderella, in which Mr. DeMille's genius is displayed to the finest advantage. It is colorful, strongly effective and produced on a scale of magnificence unexampled even in this day of stupendous productions. Agnes Ayres the leading woman player is a suffering wife living in a tenement; Clarence Burton, a gambler and crook, plays the role of the husband, and Theodore Roberts is an oil king who has an important part in shaping the girl's career. The story was written by Jeanie MacPherson, while the photoplay was the work of Alvin Wyckoff and Karl Struss.

What is "Forbidden Fruit"?

By GRACE KINGSLEY

"What is forbidden fruit, anyway?" I asked Cecil B. DeMille.

The producer of satirical photoplays on marriage had paused for lunch at the Lasky studio at Hollywood. All morning he has been working on his new special production entitled "Forbidden Fruit," the Paramount picture. The picturesque director, in his khaki-colored trousers, puttees and cream-colored silk shirt, smiled across at his brother William and answered quite bravely I thought:

"I'm defining forbidden fruit as women we shouldn't have."

"And therefore want?" I tried to corner him.

"I don't know about the therefore," he laughed. "But anyway I guess you might say the rest of it is universal."

"And you're always universal in your themes?"

"Ah, that's it. That's what I try to be. It's the combination of the universal and the concrete that of course makes appealing drama."

It seems the new story involves a new angle on the marriage problem. Which, of course, the sophisticated will already have guessed from DeMille's explanation.

But he's something of a missionary at any rate, he says. He hopes, indeed, that he has done some good with his stories in teaching married folk to laugh at their little troubles and get together again.

He has, in fact, had many letters to that effect. Though why an artist with a "de" before his name should bother with the didactic side of a question, I don't know.

"These gently satirical plays about marriage and its everyday troubles, and even some of the big ones help, because the people can see the truth and yet laugh at the same time," he went on.

"That is," William DeMille interpolated whimsically, "if both individuals have the same kind of sense of humor!"

We human beings are all alike and all do the same things, even if sometimes in a different way, is a part of the DeMille philosophy.

"People ask me," DeMille went on, "why I make so many plays with sex themes. I do it, I tell them, because sex is universal—it's the one thing that everybody has."

"Marriage is therefore the best theme for a play, because it's a relation involving sex, a relation which everybody has had, has, is going to have or wants to have. So those in it are interested, and those outside are interested in finding out about it."

Then Mr. DeMille went on to say that it was ceremony between husband and wife that is the secret of happy marriage. Which is, of course, a social pill that people have been told to swallow thousands of times, but it remained for DeMille to give the sugar-and-spice coating to the medicine.

Kathlyn Williams and Theodore Roberts in scene from Cecil B. DeMille's Production, "Forbidden Fruit." A Paramount Picture

DeMille intends making a series of these social satires on marriage. And he means to continue to be perfectly frank in his treatment of the theme, despite, for instance the shock the Philadelphia Board of Censors recently got because in one scene he showed a glimpse of apparel, to put it delicately—that article of a lady's garments known as "teddies."

"All the angles of the sex question, you will notice, are treated from the mental and the temperamental angles," he continued. "That keeps the drama sane and amusing. I'm leaving the revelations of brutes to others."

"Ah," I said to myself, "others!" But he went on:

"I think that's the treatment which Anglo-Saxon audiences prefer. Americans have the cleanest treatment of the sex question speaking from a dramatic and literary standpoint, of any nation in the world. And Americans men have the cleanest point of view and the highest respect for women."

"But, of course, we are getting franker. Oh, in every way. If twenty years ago a woman had walked down the street with a dress to her knees she would have been mobbed."

"We're franker in our discussions, too. But these are not revelling in dirt, but are merely an airing of ruff."

"This recalls by contrast the old days of prudery when once my grandfather was entertaining a mixed company, and I, a small boy at the time, piped up and alluded to lady's night."

"Well, that's what you wear, isn't it?" I persisted.

"My dear!" she exclaimed. "It's not for gentlemen to talk about! Why my husband never saw me in my nightgown!"

"Why grandma," I expostulated, "and it was then the company got the woman who lived in a shoe—all are memories as of a different life.

Yet today, we who fancy we have outgrown these things, will be the first to welcome them when they are brought to us by Cecil B. DeMille, the producer of Paramount special photoplays in his newest picture, "Forbidden Fruit."

The vision of Cinderella and the ball she attends after the kindly fairy has transformed her into a thing of beauty is the result of the combined efforts of Jeanie MacPherson, the author; Clara West, costume designer; Howard Higgin, production manager; Paul Chaffin, architectural designer; Theodore Kosloff, who suggested many of the costumes and the decorations; the actors, the staff of assistants, the cameramen under Alvin Wyckoff, Wilfred Buckland, art director, and, first of all, Cecil B. DeMille.

Each contributed to what is admitted to everyone who has seen it to be the most exquisite and sumptuous scene that has ever been devised for a photodrama.

It will last upon the screen less than five minutes—probably not more than three. It took many days of preparation to build, many days of labor on costumes, lighting, decorating and so on; many hours to "shoot" and innumerable brainstorms. This is an evidence of the lengths to which producers for Paramount will go to get perfection and to achieve the unusual. Any stage producer in the country would have counted himself fortunate to be able to use this setting and the costumes for an entire act and a whole season in the metropolises. At the studio, with Cecil B. DeMille, it is a thing of a day—an ephemeral thing, an incident, though an important and costly one, in his daily work.

The scene was enacted on a stage of plate glass, with glass walls and a grand staircase of crystal, with pillars of glass topped by crystal fruit and flowers, each a fountain from which jeweled drops of water sprayed upon the floor which gave back reflection and duplicated the marvelous through a thousand times.

Agnes Ayres, lately the little maiden of the ashes, came decked in a costume that surely a fairy must have spun. There she met her prince, the handsome Forrest Stanley, in a garb that defies all descriptive powers. But recently she had seen the fairy godmother who transformed her—Kathlyn Williams, the stately beauty, in a weird black robe of mysterious portent, bedecked with gems and slashed with silver, her shoes alight with tiny electric bulbs, her wand flashing a brilliant star. Miss Ayres' gown was trimmed with tiny electrical bulbs and the effect was marvelously beautiful.

Truly Cecil B. DeMille has waved the magic wand and brought back to us the fairyland of yesterday.

AGNES AYRES, DE MILLE
LATEST LEADING LADY

"Some day—somewhere, I'm going to play on the stage."

In her dressing room at the Lasky studio, between scenes of Cecil B. DeMille's production, "Forbidden Fruit", the Paramount picture, Agnes Ayres voiced her pet secret ambition.

"I've always wanted to go on the stage; ever since I was a little girl I've nursed the idea of some day playing behind the footlights, and I never have."

"I've been in pictures nearly four years," continued the lovely leading woman of Cecil B. DeMille's current production. "I've played with most of the big producers and in support of some of the biggest stars. I'm not dissatisfied with my screen work. I love it. But I can't help wanting to go on the stage."

"I don't know why I have never tried to gratify that longing. Perhaps because I've been too busy playing in pictures. You know I have played most of the time since I made my debut some years ago. There has never been a long interval between pictures. If there had been I might have cast about for an opening on the stage. But luck—good or bad—kept me occupied with screen acting."

"The strange part about all of this is the fact that most of my early screen work was in the center of stage activity—New York City. Los Angeles is the center of motion picture productions; New York is the home of the stage producers of note."

"Yet in all the time I spent in the East, I never made an effort to secure a part on the stage there. And now that I'm several thousand miles away from it, the desire to go on the stage is stronger than ever."

"No, I'm not thinking of abandoning screen work for the stage," in answer to the unvoiced query; "I have a perfectly good, long-term contract with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation which would stand in the way even if I were contemplating any such move. And I'm not thinking about much of anything except my work with Mr. DeMille. That in itself is enough to keep anyone busy."

"But I like to think about what I might do if things were different. I like to dream of success on the stage, of the applause of the audience—if I were lucky enough to win applause, and of the romance of the theatre."

"Perhaps I should be disappointed," smiled Miss Ayres. "One never knows what might happen if one's dreams came true. But I am going to gratify that ambition some day, just to see how much the real and the dream resemble each other."

"Who is my favorite actress? Really I have two favorites and they are just as different as can be. I have always admired Laurette Taylor—and wanted to do the things she does on the stage. And I felt precisely the same way about Mrs. Fiske."

"So you see it must be just a childhood notion of mine. I can't possibly copy both of them. I don't want to imitate either of them. I would like to be just Agnes Ayres—with a touch of the charm of both of them."

"That's asking a great deal I know. And I may never get a chance to try. But I can go on wishing. And I am most certainly going on acting for the screen while I dream. I never let my stage dream interfere with my screen work. That's reality and a very dear reality. The other is just the survival of a small girl's idea of a grown-up ambition."

HOW CECIL B. DE MILLE MAKES BIG PICTURE

Cecil B. DeMille, director general of the Famous Players-Lasky Company, and producer of some of the most successful photoplays given to the screen, goes about his work quietly but deliberately after months of story preparation and never-ending detail relative to scenes, sequences and photographic and lighting values.

For Cecil DeMille enters upon each production with the ambition of making it better than any of its predecessors. Sometimes it takes him six months to finish a picture, starting with the selection of the story and ending with the final cutting and titling of the picture. The actual photographic work is often completed, within six weeks or two months after shooting begins.

He works and creates his screen values while closed alone in one of the most artistic, weird and yet inspiring settings ever conceived where, in creative genius could reveal. Mr. DeMille's private office at the Lasky studio, entered by only a few people outside his intimate circle of acquaintances and business association, is the last word in comfort and seclusion. The floor is covered with luxurious and costly rugs of magnificent design, and the walls are decorated with a thousand and one relics and souvenirs and art subjects. His mahogany table is located almost in the center of this paradise, and it is here that he reads stories and confers with heads of scenario departments about stories and where he transacts big business deals that often startle the motion picture world.

When the final continuity of this story has been officially Okeyed, Mr. DeMille then calls his art director and several more days are spent on

Then he discusses lighting and photographic values with his chief cameraman. He calls in the principals in the cast and many rehearsals are held. Finally, when production begins Mr. DeMille personally directs all scenes. He passes much time in examining shadings and lightings and artistic and photographic effects through the camera. That's why each of his productions is stamped with the exquisite DeMille touch.

I recently passed six hours on a DeMille set, where 100 people were waiting before the camera clicked a single foot of film. The people present just waited until the big director was satisfied that every detail was correct and that every mechanical, as well as dramatic advantage, could be presented in perfect unison with the spirit of the sequence to be filmed. But in exercising his caution and patience and attention in detail, Mr. DeMille is always able to film his scenes correctly, thereby eliminating "retakes" and after all saving money in the final expense analysis.

When the filming has been completed, Mr. DeMille personally takes charge of the cutting and titling. After this detail has been attended to he reviews the picture several times before critical and trained audiences consisting of studio officials and studio attaches. The picture is always out through the "acid test" before it is released to the American public, and then later to the world.

"FORBIDDEN FRUIT"

A Paramount Picture

What are the duties a wife owes a husband who steadily drags her downward? What shall she do when another offers a fine, true love that would lift her up? These are the questions asked and answered in "Forbidden Fruit." A drama warm with flesh and blood of living men and women. Dressed in all the glowing color and luxury that DeMille can weave like a cloth of gold. A story that blends the spiritual beauty of "Something To Think About" with the flare and silken fashion of "Why Change Your Wife?" More thrillingly realistic, more sumptuously staged, than any other production DeMille has created.
